Craftsmanship, attention to detail and 'going the extra mile'

Commenting on the awards, convener of judges, Clive Loxton, says the awards recognise a quest for excellence.

“ They recognise craftsmanship, attention to detail and 'going the extra mile'. We commend the shareholders for their bravery and not inconsiderable investment; in both time and money, to produce a result South Africa can be proud of. ”

He adds that the competition was very fierce in all three categories.

Investigative journalism is evolving as newsrooms continue to shrink
