Litha Communications has had to postpone the Extraordinary South African lunch, featuring H. E. Dr Nkosazana Dlamini-Zuma, scheduled for 11 December 2014, due to the very high volume of people eager to attend but who are not in Johannesburg this week.

"Fortunately for us, Dr Zuma has indicated her willingness to return to South Africa in the new year to address those people who are eager to hear from a woman who represents all that is extraordinary about being a South African on the national and global stage," explains Teresa Jenkins, MD of Litha Communications.

"Dr Dlamini-Zuma is an undisputable trailblazer in the upliftment and empowerment of women across the African continent. Her career as a struggle activist and politician is testimony to her indestructible and courageous spirit. We look forward to welcoming her and engaging in the network possibilities to be had from such a great woman.

For those who have booked and paid for this event, we will refund the cost of the ticket, unless they would like to hold the reservation over for the 2015 event, which will be slightly more expensive than this year's one. For those who are interested now, they can still book and pay this year, to take advantage of this offer. This will ensure that they have a seat, as seating is limited, and that they will benefit from the 2014 price," concludes Jenkins.
