OneRepublic have achieved huge international success throughout their career. Their first album 'Dreaming Out Loud' (2007) was certified as Platinum, earning them a Grammy nomination and went straight to number one in 16 countries. Their first single, Apologize, remixed by Timbaland ranks in the top 50 on the Billboard Hot 100's All-Time Top Songs list and became a worldwide smash hit and their second single, Stop and Stare, followed with the same success. Their second album 'Waking Up' (2009) spawned hit singles All The Right Moves and Good Life.

In creating their third full-length album 'Native' (2013), OneRepublic travelled to Paris, Greece, London, New York, Seattle, and Vancouver to write and record describing it as a "bold and boundary-pushing follow-up to 2009's 'Waking Up', offering up a surge of stadium-sized rock that's fiercely beat-driven yet ethereal and intimate". 'Native' debuted at number four on the Billboard 200 and their hit single Counting Stars reached number two on the Billboard Top 100, their highest charting single since Apologize, as well as the top 10 of the Kia Top 40 on 947.
