

Uplifting Table Mountain Aerial Cableway's website

Flow Communications has redesigned the Cape Town's Table Mountain Aerial Cableway (TMAC) website. It now offers all the information necessary for visitors to Table Mountain in an informative and accessible way that does justice to this beautiful site.

Head of the development team, Richard Frank, adds, "The site has undergone cosmetic and structural changes. It now features a responsive design, which will ensure it works well on desktops as well as tablets and mobile phones."

The site gives visitors all the information they need to plan their trip up the mountain, from the latest weather reports to online ticket bookings. Visitors can also interact through the site's wide range of social media platforms.

For more information, go to www.tablemountain.net.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>