

YouTube Go turns YouTube into offline video portal

By Myolisi Sikupela

28 Sep 2016

Google's latest app YouTube Go, aims to make it easier for those with limited connectivity to watch videos offline.

© Memeburn

YouTube Go will initially launch in India, and according to the company, its team has travelled the country to better understand its peoples' requirements.

But while the app will head to the Asian subcontinent first, the advantages for Africa and other data-stretched lands are clear to see.

YouTube Go will allow users to save videos for offline viewing, while allowing them to choose the video quality and file size. It effectively means that YouTube is now a portable, offline video repository...

Click through to the full article on Memeburn.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>