Leading digital marketing group Incubeta announced it has acquired e-commerce experts Groundswell. The acquisition of the Belfast-based company will expand Incubeta's reach to e-commerce clients worldwide. Groundswell, founded in 2017, brings with it customers including STATSports, The Pro's Closet and WiggleCRC, among others.

Incubeta, present in 12 countries globally, is the union of three market-leading specialists: NMPi, DQ&A and Joystick and has grown to 428 over the last 16 years. Groundswell specialises in e-commerce consultancy, conversion optimisation, analytics and digital advertising. Since 2017, the company has grown rapidly to become a leader in the field.

Groundswell's capabilities and proprietary technology complement Incubeta's. With this acquisition Incubeta positions itself to take full control of the entire customer journey from awareness through to fulfillment.

"We are thrilled to be joining Incubeta, a company we have worked with over the last several years and look forward to creating many more successes together. We remain focused on partnering with existing and new clients to accelerate their growth online and as part of Incubeta we can now offer an unrivalled service, creating opportunities for them to maximise their potential," said Mark Lilley, co-founder and director of Groundswell.

"This acquisition fits squarely within Incubeta's strategy of acquiring companies that complement our core business in digital marketing and help us to upgrade the growth of our customers," said Lars Lehne, group CEO of Incubeta.

As outlined in the deal, Groundswell will be incorporated into the Incubeta brand and co-founders Mark Lilley and Richard McKnight will continue on in leadership roles.
